WPD continues traffic enforcement project

The Wichita Police Department Monday continued its month-long traffic enforcement to crack down on speeders and aggressive drivers. On July 6, officers from all four Field Services bureaus mostly targeted Kellogg near the Washington interchange, Kellogg Drive, and the area near Pawnee and Seneca in an operation that resulted in 109 citations being written.

During the project on Monday, officers issued 44 speeding citations, 63 turn violation citations, four seatbelt violations, two citations for no proof of insurance, two citations for no driver's license, and one citation for a tag violation.

Forty-three of the 44 speeding citations were issued in the construction zone on Kellogg near Washington. One of those citations was issued to a driver of a vehicle that was traveling 73 miles per hour in a 50 mph zone. Another citation issued near Kellogg and West Street was to a motorist who was traveling 79 mph in a 60 mph speed zone.

Since the July traffic enforcement project began on July 1, officers so far have issued a total of 255 citations for speeding and other traffic law violations.
